

NORTHERN TRUST CAPITAL MARKETS GIVE THEIR TIME FOR THE GREATER GOOD OF THEIR LOCAL COMMUNITIES

As part of the company's global philanthropy strategy Northern Trust's Capital Markets teams in Chicago and London recently gave back to their local communities by volunteering for Habitat for Humanity Chicago and Habitat for Humanity Great Britain (GB). These efforts are part of a global volunteering program within our Asset Servicing business and build on our commitment to Habitat for Humanity International following our inaugural Charity Trading Day last year benefitting the global housing non-profit.

In Chicago, Northern Trust employees have come together to support Habitat for Humanity Chicago who are committed to helping local families and communities achieve strength, stability and self-reliance through building homes and development projects. During June and July our teams have contributed to various house builds on the south side of Chicago. Their tasks ranged from installing blinds and hanging doors in nearly finished homes, to putting up sheathing and drywall in houses in the early stages of construction.

"Seeing the direct outcomes of our work and knowing that we were making a lasting contribution to our communities in Chicago was especially gratifying," said Jeffrey M. Melvin, Head of Trading for US Integrated Trading Solutions, at Northern Trust. Josh Bebar, Senior Equity Trader added, "Stable, affordable housing can serve as the foundation for a more secure future which is why it was so fulfilling contributing to the development of new houses that some families would one day call home."

Meanwhile in London, Capital Markets employees have been volunteering in support of Habitat for Humanity GB's Empty Spaces to Home program, an initiative that seeks to convert empty commercial spaces into decent affordable homes for vulnerable people facing homelessness.

The team spent a day in East London upcycling furniture that will be used in social housing enabling new residents to have a furnished home and not just a roof over their heads. From sanding to painting furniture, the team's DIY skills were put to the test as they upcycled side tables and wardrobes among other items.

"It was a very rewarding and humbling day knowing that the furniture we upcycled would be used to furnish homes created for young people leaving statutory care. I think it's incredibly important that everyone has somewhere safe and welcoming to call home and I'm proud of our contributions to helping achieve that in our communities," said Anais Le Clainche, Senior Foreign Exchange Sales Trader, Northern Trust.

Elsewhere Northern Trust Capital Markets employees have been giving their time in support of Habitat for Humanity Australia and Habitat for Humanity Singapore. In the Blue Mountains, New South Wales, volunteering efforts have involved helping residents in bushfire-exposed areas prepare for the next fire season, while in Singapore the team have given their time to activities such as picking up litter in support of the non-profit's mission to create a clean and safe living environment in the home and beyond.

Through the remainder of the year our employees as well as clients will come together in further support of Habitat's mission as we continue to volunteer and give back to the communities in which we live and work around the globe. As part of Achieving Greater Together – our signature month of service – we are also excited to be hosting this year's Charity Trading Day on October 12 so watch out for future updates from your regular Northern Trust servicing contact.
